

Texas 1836 Project

TXCSS President

Shalon Bond

The Potential Impact of the Texas 1836 Project

- Ensure the rich heritage of Texas remains relevant for all who call Texas home.
- Design a resource that compliments the K12 learning of the state of Texas
- Provide a reason for maintaining a devotion to and vigorous support for the development of our state.

Ensure the rich heritage of Texas remains relevant for all who call Texas home

Shared culture that builds civic engagement and promotes social capital in the state's citizenry.

- Belonging (feelings do matter)
- Connecting (community matters)
- Responding (accountability matters)

The potential impact of the 1836 Project is rooted in the materials being valued and used to drive a Texan to engage civically. Therefore, 29,527,941 (and growing) citizens of Texas should feel like they belong, are connected, and responsible for the sustainability of Texas' rich heritage.

Design a resource that compliments the K12 learning in the state of Texas

“The State is our Classroom”

As a co-curricular support to a diverse state, capturing the untold content is vital.

- the indigenous peoples of this state
- the Spanish and Mexican Heritage
- the Tejanos
- the Black heritage

The potential impact of the 1836 Project is going to be defined by the inclusiveness it provides. Ensuring that

Provide a reason for maintaining a devotion to and vigorous support for the development of our state

Every year Texas schools honor
Celebrate Freedom Week to highlight the values and ideals on which the United

In conclusion

All of the narratives and events that come across the desk of this advisory may challenge you to think differently about the way you move this work forward.

The Texas Council for the Social Studies would like to be your greatest support as the Texas 1836 Project is realized. We believe in advancing quality social studies education as a community of learners and leaders.

We are willing and capable of influencing this project is used and valued. We hope to be proud and encouraged by the outcome of this great advisory.