

Can related services be determined based on a particular disability category?

No. An ARD committee is responsible for determining appropriate educational services, including related services, based on the individual educational needs of a student. A policy of determining related services based on a disability category would be inconsistent with state and federal requirements that services be based on individual needs.

Are parents involved in the provision of related services?

